Mr. Everett in New Quarters.

Mr. S. J. Everett now has his law office in the second story of the Shelburn building, on Third street. He has a suite of two rooms and is fitting them up very attractively. It is remembered that Mr. Everett was burned out just after opening his office last February, and since then has had to occupy temporary quarters in the office of Dr. Laughinghouse. He stands high in the legal profession and is building a good practice here. —Greenville Reflector.

Plowed Into a Snake Den.

Mr. J. C. Swanson, who lives a few miles southeast of town, plowed into a snake den containing twenty-six copperhead snakes, the old mother snake and her brood of twenty-five young ones, which were about one foot long. Mr. Swanson says when the old mother snake dropped into the furrow behind his plow he did some pretty high jumping, and then as the little fellows came "tumbling after" it looked like the ground was turning into snakes and he had a regular "snake killing time." —Lenoir News.

Mrs. White Injured.

Mrs. Carey W. White, of Tillery, received a painful and distressing injury while riding in an automobile near Hamilton Sunday evening. Mr. and Mrs. White, with another couple, had made the trip from Tillery to Hamilton in an automobile Sunday morning. As they left Hamilton that evening, the machine running at a pretty good speed, the car ran over a place in the street, when Mrs. White was suddenly thrown from her seat against the top of the machine, receiving painful injuries about the face. Her nose was cut almost off, besides several other cuts about her face. Not being able to secure a doctor in Hamilton, Mr. White hurried to Scotland Neck, where Mrs. White was given medical attention by Dr. O. F. Smith. Her wounds were dressed and the torn and cut parts of her face were stitched together, and after resting awhile, she was carried on the same automobile to her home in Tillery. Mrs. White bore the accident bravely, showing strong nerve and endurance. From the latest reports she is getting along very nicely and we hope she may soon be none the worse for the accident.

NEWSPAPER BARGAIN DAY.

Raleigh Afternoon Paper Putting on Special Offer for Ten Days.

One of the biggest bids made for business in this State in recent years by a daily newspaper has just been announced by The Evening Times of Raleigh. The subscription price of this paper is $5.00 per year, but for a period of ten days only, from October 1 to October 10 at 12 o'clock p. m., they are going to accept yearly subscriptions in advance for the sum of $2.50. This certainly is one of the most remarkable offers ever made by a responsible newspaper in this section. It is frequently done in the North and West, but The Evening Times is the first to inaugurate such a plan in this section. The idea is, according to Editor Simms, of The Evening Times, that several thousand new subscriptions can be added to the list in these ten days and collections made on the old accounts with practically no cost, and, therefore, it is best to give the subscribers the benefit of the quick work. The Evening Times is Raleigh's great afternoon paper, and its leased wire telegraph service and State news page is among the best. The idea of getting a daily paper on a bargain for $2.50 per year in this State will be watched with much interest.

THE LATE THOMAS L. EMERY.

Roanoke Rapids Stands Today as His Living Monument.

The announcement in Friday morning's News and Observer of the death of Captain Thomas L. Emery in Staunton, Va., came as a distinct shock to his many friends, who had not heard that he was ill. For many years he was a resourceful leader in public affairs in Halifax county, his most enduring work being as a leader in the utilization of the water power of the Roanoke and the building up of the flourishing manufacturing town of Roanoke Rapids. A gentleman, who had known Captain Emery long and well, writes this estimate and appreciation:

"Major Thomas L. Emery, of Weldon, ex-Senator from Halifax, and a brave Confederate soldier, died Thursday at Staunton, Va. His death will come as a shock to his many friends scattered all over this State and Virginia. He has left his impress upon the community where he lived and wrought so long and faithfully for its uplift. Of strong convictions when convinced of the righteousness of his cause, he was bold and always aggressive in his opinion and action. To no man does Halifax county owe a greater debt of gratitude than to Major Emery. Truly he was a Democrat militant. In its darkest hours he stood shoulder to shoulder with the always lamented Captain W. H. Kitchin, in the forefront of danger. Few localities ever had two such men at one time.

"Major Emery came out of the war penniless. He had only his trade as a tinner, and there was nothing for him to do. He devoted his time to farming, and after a few years of ceaseless toil, to merchandising. He succeeded in everything he undertook. Cool judgment, with untiring industry and skill in business brought him at length to a large landed estate, upon which he employed considerable capital and labor. The last few years of his useful life were devoted to the building of the now thrifty and progressive manufacturing town of Roanoke Rapids. With a prophetic eye, he foresaw the possibilities of the Roanoke water power and turned it to account. A town and factories with busy spindles literally sprang up out of the woods at his touch, and stands today a living memorial to his great grasp of affairs and his restless energy.

"He always had large ideas, and bent his wonderful industry to their execution. He was a philanthropist and stood with generous hands to dispense help to the needy poor. He always stood ready to befriend his friends and neighbors. He looked upon the rosy side of life and carried its burdens with a cheerful heart. He had as many friends among the high as among the lowly, and they all frequently took his wise counsel.

"The old soldier sleeps with his brave Confederate comrades. Peace to his memory."—News and Observer.
